

ANTHROPOLOGY

Friday October 15, 2021 *12:30pm *Zoom
RSVP by October 1 to anthrorsvp@uwo.ca

GEHMAN LECTURE Anne Meneley

Professor, Dept. of Anthropology
Trent University

Plants of Resistance and Hope

Drawing on years of work with olive harvesters, seed savers, ecofarmers, and foragers in Palestine, I contemplate what these kinds of fertile activities offer in terms of the quotidian and prosaic acts of making a living or augmenting one's income; in terms of ephemeral but memorable acts of cooking, preserving, and eating; and in terms of a site of preserving Palestinian plant knowledge, distinctive cultivars and delicious recipes. I consider what this site of field research might have to offer for wider anthropological considerations of hope, resistance, and formulating futures.

Western  Social Science

Supported by the Social Science Student Donation Fund